AN AMERICAN HOSPITAL IN PARIS.

The American Ambulance hospital, an institution in Paris that has done noble work in that city for fifty years, is asking for help from Americans who must sympathize with the cause of the French republic in its struggles for liberty, struggles which now have reached a crisis for the free nations of the earth. France was America's faithful ally in 1776; no American should ever forget that fact. Readers of The Recorder who may wish to contribute to the great American hospital in Paris may do so through the Citizens National bank of Salmon, and their help will go where it will relieve suffering and succor the stricken of an heroic race of men.

There is a good deal of the ostrich in Teddy. The ostrich lays her eggs in the sand and depends principally upon the hot sun to hatch them. She, in the meantime, spending most of her days enjoying herself. Teddy has a way of laying his political eggs and then taking a spin on the outside while they are incubating.

Just now he is off in the West Indies having a good time with Mrs. Roosevelt, leaving Mr. George W. Perkins and a few other faithful nurses to watch the nest. But he has set the day when he will return and the faithful will be on hand to force to receive him.

After that it will soon be developed what the program is to be. We predict that he will in due time be persuaded to sacrifice himself again if the people persist in demanding it, and that he has fixed it so that y will persist.—Goodwin's Weekly.

The Philadelphia Record has a cartoon showing President Wilson as a soldier on the ramparts of a fortification, with rifle in hand, to shield this country from threatened danger from complications abroad; and lurking behind the wall in the shadow there is a small bunch of plotters against him, while the great figure of Washington overlooks all. The explanation of the picture is given below it: "George had to contend with them, too." Up to the day of the victory for American arms at Monmouth the opponents of Washington at home were about as dangerous as those who bore arms against his great cause.

REPUBLICAN SEES SOME HOPE AHEAD.

Editor John D. Nims of the Jerome News, which is one of the consistent and very able republican newspapers of Idaho, publishes a leading editorial in his last paper very clearly pointing to Governor Alexander as his own probable successor in that office, because, as the News points out, there is nobody yet in sight in the list of active republican candidates to measure up to the requirements. As the Jerome editor puts it,—

While making no specific objection nor pointing out any particular short-coming, none of the republican candidates announced impresses The News as being fully up to the measurements of a governor of Idaho.

The editorial carries the caption, "Will His Name Be Moses?" and from reading the same it must be inferred that Editor Nims sees no way to beat the present governor. Subjoined are the striking portions of the News editorial, which must give cold shivers to a good many present-day statesmen in the republican party:

The methods employed by some of these self-appointed candidates are absolutely pettifogging and childish. They point out that a governor should be a man of executive ability, sound discretion, experience, well posted on the requirements of the commonwealth—in short a leader of men. On all of this there is no patent or copyright. It has always been so since the foundation of civil government. In fact a man is presumed to be just that sort of person before his name may be even suggested in connection with the office of governor. And such a man is not apt to be the one who discovers his own availability.

The News hopes that there may yet be inducement offered to some of the really big men of the state in the Republican party whereby they will consent to the use of their names in the primary for the nomination for governor. There are a number of them. But they will not be found proclaiming or extolling their own virtues nor prosecuting a personal campaign. They are all busy men, having substantial interests of their own and with experience in state affairs that fit them for the place—practical men of sound discretion and good horse sense.

Jim Isley is shipping out a carload of hogs, to be followed by another shipment of fat cattle within a few weeks. All the stock is in fine condition to top the market.

Preparations for the coming production, "Next Door," under the direction of the Salmon Epworth League, are well under way, the drama to be presented toward the latter part of March.—Adv.

The date selected for the coming M. E. stewards' concert is March 13, on Monday night. The best talent in the community is enlisted in the preparation of the great musical feast.

Charley Chaplin will be seen on the screens at the Grand Saturday evening. Enough said. Charley is a better-salaried man than the president of the United States—just four times the amount Uncle Sam pays Wilson is what Charley draws, or $300,000 a year. There is no raise in price to see him in action, high priced fun maker though he be.—Adv.

It is the only active cure now known to the medical profession. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. HALL'S CATARRH CURE is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood, purifying the system, restoring the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in her work. The proprietors are so much faith in its curative power that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.
